

Why Doctors are losing an ENORMOUS amount of money (see below for viable options)

By utilizing Transcription Plus, LLC services, doctors can put focus back on their patients, and stop being clerical workers.

This is a graph depicting how much time and money doctors are wasting by trying to do it all themselves.

Electronic Health Record Options Doctors can focus on patients and stop being clerical workers

Did you know that Transcription Plus, LLC has the ability to directly access your E.H.R. system and input your dictated notes and/or edit speech-generated reports for context and accuracy? Doctors can continue to work in the way they are accustomed, without having to disrupt normal schedules. We can add value to your E.H.R. investment by providing a much-needed service solution to your technological choice.

- Does your current E.H.R. technology distract from the intimacy of the patient encounter?
- Are you seeing fewer patients because this process leaves you with little time?
- No time to proofread or edit?
- Isn't the cost of your time better spent on patient care?

Transcription Plus, LLC can take over the clerical portion of your E.H.R. system for one, some or all of the doctors at your facility – simply and easily.

Transcription Plus, LLC has years of experience working with the medical community in the transition to and adoption of Electronic Health Records. As a physician, you can't be expected to know how and have time to produce professional and accurate documentation. That is our job as medical transcriptionists. Doesn't it make sense for doctors to spend time doing what they do best? — Evaluating a patient and being in charge of their care. We can help you without changing the way you work and without adding extra time to your already busy day.

Transcription Plus, LLC has a solution for you:

- Our medical transcriptionists will be your clinical data, data quality and decision support specialists.
- We provide a service solution to your technology choice.
- Of the three documentation options (direct data entry, FESR and narrative dictation), 80% of doctors prefer narrative dictation – and do not have the time to proofread and edit.

Narrative dictation offers documentation of complete and accurate records. Medical transcription plays a relevant role in documentation and in helping to solve the E.H.R. adoption dilemma. This is vital to the future of healthcare and the national E.H.R. initiative. Integrated solutions that leverage both technology and service offerings will ultimately be improving patient care. Common sense and human thought can never be replaced by a machine. Let us help you!

Transcription Plus, LLC is currently providing these services. Here is what some of our clients are saying:

“When our facility incorporated the use of E.H.R., all of our doctors were extremely pleased that they didn't have to change their dictation and documentation habits. Transcription Plus, LLC takes our digital audio dictation and, through use of secure direct access to our electronic records, inputs patient health information ready for immediate use. Our facility continues to be represented with professional and extremely accurate documentation, while our physicians are not wasting their important time doing clerical work.”

“Although I decided to utilize the speech recognition capabilities of our E.H.R. system to facilitate my dictation of pertinent patient information, I found myself not having the time in my busy schedule to properly proofread/edit the final output. Transcription Plus does this all important editing for me, greatly cutting down on traditional transcription costs while still presenting accurate documentation for my patients.”

“We have been particularly pleased with the ability of Transcription Plus, LLC transcriptionists to log into our laboratory information system and directly enter our dictations into the patient record. This allows a seamless operation from dictation to completion of the report despite the fact that the transcriptionists are all off site.”

By outsourcing your work to the proven reliability of Transcription Plus, LLC, the results you will see for your practice will be immediate savings in time, effort and money. Organizations that are focused on providing integrated solutions that leverage both technology and service offerings will ultimately lead to improved patient care. We add value to your E.H.R. investment by providing a much-needed service solution to your technology choice.
